Greetings from Our President

Welcome to 2015. How fast it has arrived and I hope everyone had a safe and enjoyable holiday season.

Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to serve you as club president for the upcoming year. I will try my best to make it an exciting and interesting one.

I have a lot of new ideas, but I really value your ideas as this is your club. This club has become a rising star in a few short years due to the efforts of its membership, but let us aim for the heavens and beyond.

During the next 12 months, I encourage all members to think of ideas for new and interesting programs and activities, and of new ways to increase and maintain our membership. Let's recruit both new members and former members to attend our meetings and activities to see if it meets their needs and expectations.

I want to thank everyone for their dedication to helping this club grow and be recognized, especially the founders and former officers.

Let's have FUN! Remember, this is a hobby to be enjoyed. A hobby that we can pursue new horizons in our quest to learn, experiment, relax or educate and assist others. I hope to see you at the next meeting.

Second Story Headline

Place your stories in order of their importance. For example, your most important story should be at the top of the page. Less important stories, or stories that may appeal to a smaller portion of your audience should be lower down on the page.

Use paragraphs often. A wall of white text makes it hard for the reader to skim a story and find a way to quickly drop in and out of your content. White space gives the user an opening into your information. Don't be afraid to leave spaces open.

You might also designate a consistent spot on the page for lighter, or more editorial content. That way the reader always knows where to look for a certain type of content.

Most successful publications include a mix of content types to satisfy a wide range of tastes. Consider putting your most serious content on the front page, and your lighter content inside.

It's called a story for a reason

Integrate frequent headlines to announce different sections of your story. Consider writing your content in a personal tone, in the same way you might talk to someone sitting across from you at a restaurant.

Include paragraph breaks often

Sidebar Story Headline

Sidebars complement a main article. Use them when you want to keep your main articles direct and information packed, but you still want to share extra or supplementary content.

For example, if your main story is about your new building plans, consider using the sidebar to talk about the history of the land plot, or to tell a story of your first encounter with the property.

Another Story Headline

Your headline is an important part of the newsletter and should be considered carefully.

In a few words, it should accurately represent the contents of the story and draw readers into the story. Develop the headline before you write the story. This way, the headline will help you keep the story focused. Examples of possible headlines include Selling Your Home and New Office Opens Near You.

If you have to break a headline into two rows, try to find a natural break in the content. Each line should stand alone so that your readers can easily understand what is in the story even while skimming.

Newspaper editors consider headline writing like poetry. How can you get the reader's attention and draw them into the story in only a few words?

Meanwhile, you don't want to give too much away, or the reader doesn't even have to read the story to understand the content.
